Grain cultivation uses almost half of the energy required in this system; however, many swine farmers are not involved in this process. Facility operation, which includes heating, cooling, and ventilation, is the second largest energy user at 25% (Figure 1). Operation provides a great opportunity. I'm trying to power one/two 200 Wyatt heaters for my chickens and pig. r1yOVHzN5feTBdZVBiQ5We8t3FEVz9NoaAsttEALw_wcB I would love to heat both houses but its very far away from any outlets and would require a ridiculous amount of extension chords making it. The setup isn't anything crazy, just a solar panel that charges a 12-volt marine battery, which is in turn hooked to an energizer connected to fencing. But when you add the kit that mounts the solar panel as well as houses the marine battery, things get portable. Hog panels are ideal for pig pens as they are strong, The Improving Farm Productivity solar grant is designed to support the installation of solar equipment on farm roofs and reservoirs. Depending on your budget, area/terrain, climate, creativeness, goals, space, experience, and material availability some materials may work better for you. Below are some examples that can be used:.
