

Where to buy solar photovoltaic panel insurance

Overview

Let's walk through everything you need to know about insuring your solar panel system and how they're protected if something goes wrong. Most roof-mounted solar panels are automatically covered by standard homeowners insurance, while ground-mounted systems typically are not. Installing solar panels on your home represents a significant investment that can provide long-term savings on energy bills and environmental benefits. However, owners risk substantial financial losses from weather events, theft, vandalism, or accidental damage without adequate insurance. Insurance can help offset those risks, but many homeowners are unclear on whether their panels are automatically covered by homeowners insurance or if they need a separate policy. Let's break it all down in detail. Solar panel insurance helps protect against physical damage, theft, vandalism, breakdowns or malfunctions, and business interruptions. The cost of insurance for solar installation insurance offers complete protection against an unexpected financial blow, which can be caused by partial or complete damage to the panel system, theft, or an accident directly related to the solar installation. In most cases, your homeowners policy will cover roof-mounted solar panels, but coverage limits, exclusions, and premiums can vary widely.
